THE ATTORNEY-GENERALSHIP.

EDWARD PIERREPOINT WILLIE WILLIAMS' SUBSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28.—The Attorney-Generalship has been bestowed upon Mr. Edwards Pierrepont, who has been nominated to the office by the President. Mr. Williams, who has distinguished himself throughout the service, and is considered to be one of the most able and most honest men in the service, and have not worked up in harmony in their tenure, which are utterly irreconcileable, it is wholly worthless.

The Attorney-Generalship is given to Pierrepont, in order to give him an opportunity to prove his worthiness.

Another saw him ride off, and another ington, and his course from the experience of the street-pavements furnish a fair test of it. Never was so large an amount of street improvement as in Washington, so small a return was invested in within three years. The pavements, the greatest hasty, calculated to make for the contractors, the purpose of the Washington to get in as possible before the winter could be checked and durable streets, sell off the property of the exorbitant man in Washington have not been equal which composes it. There has been a great deal of it, it was mixed with asphaltum used in the state rock, which, as heated by heat to power when hot into a binding, and laid upon a concrete foundation, stone and cement.

It is a smooth and it has not yet been the any such deposit of the cost of importing great as to exclude it. But it is by no means. It is extremely good, and one severe may have it. It has proved so satisfactory. There are also Paris is not a heavy stone, and like most of them is not so great. But in both of the workmen are paving the asphaltum streets had to be used. Even in or-常 on account of the street, and necessary to stand after washing, therefore, could be used at all of Chicago, which three Fahrenheit in sometimes changes every minutes.

It appears to be the attention of em- America and the progressive cities will be, cobble-stone, steam system. The are the distressing wear and tear on Belgian pavement, blocks laid in narrow great noise, has with in the ruts and of miseries. We of the country in process; the lime in dry weather, the nastiest kind of the cities of this or those of the North of scientific men wooden pavements, paving the kind of and discovering it. Board of Missions, and apparently $550 a year constituted his sole income. He was ready in giving to the poor, but equally ready in accepting pecuniary offers from his parishioners, all of whom seem to have entertained for the singular old gentleman a very cordial regard. A few days ago he died, and the funeral was little richer than that of a pauper. On examining his effects a will was found, and property in bonds and mortgages worth, at the lowest estimate, $30,000. Of this sum $18,400 was willed to charitable institutions, while other legacies were left to relatives and friends. The remainder—$6,500—was to be divided between his brothers and sisters. Dr. O'NEILL was the son of a Chief Justice of Nova Scotia. This circumstance does little credit to the penetration of the mothers and daughters of Ashland, who had not even discovered that the dear old gentleman was in JOHN HOOKER.

A remarkable scene was presented in the Hall of the Louisiana House of Representatives on Saturday morning last. A delegation of commissioners, headed by a rough, uncouth gentleman who had just witnessed his appearance in the Hall. The delegation had been informed by the Speaker, Mr. EVELYN, that he had informed the delegation that a petition could only be regularly presented through a member. Ex-Speaker WILKINSON volunteered for the service, read the memorial from the hands of the coatless HARRISON, and presented it. The House then gave orders that it should be read; and, meanwhile, the Chairman of the delegation was invited to a seat upon the Speaker's dais. The memorial proved to be a protest against the dilatory action of the Legislature.

The hub of it was in these words: "How long will the session in the vicinity of HARRISON be held? motion to adjourn the session. At 11 a.m. the Adjournment was adjourned Northwest, and the time of the annual tree-planting. The St. Paul & Pacific Company intends on that day to set an example to the farmers of the State by transforming a 50-acre tract of prairie land into a young forest. Enterprise of this kind cannot be too highly commended. There is no single industrial undertaking in this country which, in proportion to the expenditure, conduces more to the general prosperity.

Lovely woman in Massachusetts has a vice habit of using tobacco. So it appears from the proceedings at the recent meeting of the Woman's State Temperance Union. A resolution against tobacco having been offered, Mr. LOTHROP, of Amherst, called the attention of the Convention to the fact that he found a prevalent use of the noxious weed among ladies of circles where he had associated, and that in the form of snuff the evil was very great. He had found it easier to induce men to give up tobacco than a woman in Boston. In a different class of society, in which he had been used to it in his own home, Mrs. DIAZON induced the tobacco clause, she having been converted by what had been said. Mrs. MAXWELL was earned for its adoption, as had been a woman in Chester Park actually intoxicated by it so that she could not stand without reeling, and the juice of the weed was running from the corners of her mouth.

One of the jurors in the LAMB murder case at St. Paul has published a card over his own name, testifying that he was threatened by another juror named DONNELLY. He says also that whiskey was used in the jury-room by the quart. The exact language of the card is interesting. It runs as follows: "Mrs. PALMER, consulting medium; tells past, present, and future. BY A JUROR."

I was threatened that I could not live in St. Paul unless in a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree, and that I would be compelled to pay for me half if I did not—by a juror named DONNELLY. Also there was whiskey used in the jury-room. If Mr. WHEELER had been sent down by the Government, like Gen. MONEY AND COMMERCE

FINANCIAL

There has been an improvement in trade this week, and it is to be seen among the banks in more active conduct, and in a number of departments. This tends to clinch the statement made for some time, that most of the latter has been due to the comparatively light business done. The loans applied for by manufacturers and Board of Trade men, however, have kept up very disconnected. These are not, however, the only signs of a recovery. There are a number of signs which would be glad to pass into common paper, particularly as a large amount of their little receivable fall due next month, and their surplus will be increased.

Rates of discount at the banks are $100 per cent.

On the street there is more demand for good paper than there is for bad. Banks are 70% up.

Currency began to recover again yesterday, Exchange sold at $105 per centum for banks for $1,000. The orders from the country banks for exchange are not so heavy as of the early part of the month.

The directors were SAWING.

The New York Legislature is engaged in active consideration of the bill of regulating the savings banks of that State. Two bills are before the Legislature. These bills give some idea of "An act to conform the laws of savings banks to the laws of New York." The bills are as follows:

"An act to provide for the organization of savings banks, for their supervision, and for the administration of their affairs." Both these bills proceed on the theory that since the State gives the banks the right to do business, it is the best way to control the activity of the banks.

A noticeable feature of the discussion in New York is that the savings banks themselves, as well as the directors of the city, are anxious to have the savings system, the savings banks are peculiarly fit subjects for the most rigid State supervision.

This is a very different one from that which has been pursued in this State. Instead of Legislators and savings banks uniting in a common endeavor to perfect and guard the savings system, every effort is made to keep the last section of the Legislature shows that when the Legislator and the savings bank become united in one person, the disposition to obstruct reform reaches its maximum. The attempt of the Illinois Legislature to pass the laws of New York in the savings banks, the main object of the bill, is entitled:

"An act to provide for the organization of savings banks, for their supervision, and for the administration of their affairs." Both these bills proceed on the theory that since the State gives the banks the right to do business, it is the best way to control the activity of the banks.
